CURRENT POSITION	Full professor in Experimental Pedagogy (M-PED/04 – 11D2) at Department of Education, Languages, Interculture, Literature and Psychology of University of Florence.

FIELDS OF INTEREST

The methodological framework that has most characterized research and scientific production has been represented by action research as a methodology of investigation and transformative intervention, with a progressive consolidation in terms of epistemology and scientific rigor and attention to a holistic and transdisciplinary approach.

The research activity, linked to teaching and the transfer activities envisaged by the third university mission, has developed over time maintaining a strong empirical characterization and converging on some fields of educational research with a specific focus on sustainability e sustainable development, tangible and intangible cultural heritage, community based research, training of education professionals (teaching and no-teaching, HE), quality assurance in different educational contexts.

She has organized and participated in over 150 national and international conferences and conventions. Over the years she has published over 200 scientific contributions. She has coordinated and participated in numerous research projects at national and international level and in development cooperation contexts.
